Your Computer Should Not Run Slow! Why Suffer? Call GoGeeks!

What makes a computer run slow? If you think you know the answer to this question you are probably wrong. That is because the subject is mired in endlessly repeated urban legends, especially the one that says that you have too many pictures or too much music stored on your hard drive. This is nonsense.

Let's get it straight: A computer's hard drive – where all of your documents, pictures, music and everything else is stored – is like a giant closet. Your bedroom closet doesn't care how many pairs of pants you have, right? It only matters if the rod is so full of hangers that you can't easily access them. Modern hard drives are huge & difficult to fill to capacity -- so too many songs or photos are unlikely to be the culprit.

So why is your computer slow? There could be a number of reasons. For most people, it is either because there are too many programs running in the background OR the PC is infected. Spyware infection is the most common issue we encounter and should be dealt with as soon as possible to prevent potential identity theft. A hardware problem is less likely, but certainly possible. In any case, call GoGeeks and schedule a tune-up. We can fix almost everything, but if it's time for a new a PC instead, we'll let you know.
